BASE BALL.

Notes of the Game—Contest for the Cham-pionship of the State—The Game in Bos-ton Yesterday.

The Alleghenys and Live Oaks, of the international association, have disbanded. Three of the former club have joined the Forest Citys of Cleveland, and the pitcher of the Live Oaks, a good one by the way, will probably strengthen the Providence nine.

Rain prevented a game yesterday between the Chicagos and Providence.

the Chicagos and Providence.

The Chicago Times of yesterday contains two very complete tables summarizing the play of league clubs up to that time. The tables show that Providence leads in batting, Indianapolis fifth; Boston in base running, Indianapolis fourth; Indianapolis in pitching, by large odds; Boston in fielding, Indianapolis fifth; Indianapolis in base play. Indianapolis has made 86 runs to her opponents' 73, the smallest score on both sides; Indianapolis has made 145 base hits to opponents' 123. Larkin ranks next to Nolan in effectiveness, having 157 base hits made off him.

Less than one thousand persons witnessed

Less than one thousand persons witnessed the game yesterday at Boston, between the Bostons and the Indianapolis club. The game was won by Bond's pitching, the visitors being unable to do anything with it, while the Hubbites "got onto" Noland vigorously.

Manning made the first run on a hit which struck at Clapp's feet and bounded so high that it could not be handled in time to put him out. He stole second, went to third on Burdock's out at first, and scored on Sutton's hit to right-field fence. In the next inning Leonard and O'Rourke made clean hits after two were out, and Manning, batted them in, both runs being carned. During the rest of two were out, and Manning batted them in, both runs being carned. During the rest of the game the Bostons could not get a man beyond second, although they batted safely in four inings, making two singles in the sixth. This inning was marked by a good bound catch by Croft, and the eighth by a clever left-handed catch by Quest off Manning's liner. This was the only time Jack failed to make a base hit. For the Blues, but one man, Nolan, reached second, which he made on his own safe hit and a wild pitch. The other four men who saw first pitch. The other four men who saw first base were either forced out or caught at second by Snyder and Burdock. The chief fielding honors were won by Snyder and Burdock and by Flint and Quest. The Bos-

The New Cas Company's Troubles.

During the early part of the present term of the United States court, a petition was filed by Mahlon Frost, a stockholder and president of the Citizen's gas company, for the appointment of a receiver for that company, Mr. Forest claiming that the company was being managed in the interests of the old gas company and adversely to the interests of the bona fide stockholders. The examination was begun yesterday, before William A. Brown, a commissioner appointed to take testimony. Among the facts disclosed are that on the 22d of December last a transfer of 5,018 shares of the stock of the company was made by Mr. Frost; that he, Mr. Claypool, was first approached with reference to a purchase of the stock by Mr. R. J. Bright; that he afterwards understood the purchase was made in the interest of Mr. F. M. Churchman, though at the time he did not know who it was for. In answer to a question as to who furnished the money with which the purchase was made, he said he did not know at the fime, and does not know yet. Some $40,000 was placed to his credit in bank with which to purchase the stock. The stock was afterwards transferred to himself, R. S. McKee, George N. Jackson, G. P. Adams, R. J. Bright and E. M. Wilmington.

The examination is continuing this afternoon. The New Gas Company's Troubles.

TILDEN'S VIEWS.

He Considers Himself the Rightful President---If Not Installed this Time will Wait Till 1881.
[N. Y. special to Cincinnati Enquirer.]

He has two desires—either to occupy the white house as the proper and rightful tenant during Hayes's administration, or to run for it as the defrauded candidate the issue of his legitimacy Hayes shall have filled his term. after Hayes shall have filled his term. Considering himself as the rightful president, he holds that it is proper, and also good morals, both to press the tenant in his evil occupancy, and, if unsuccessful, to make the usurpation the national issue for 1880. Mr, Tilden disclaims, as he did last year at the Manhattan club, the idea that he is the sufferer by the substitution of Hayes. He regards himself as only the repsesentative of a majority of the people, and of the constitution, which are both set aside while fraud rules. If the example is not punished now, or which are both set aside while fraud rules. If the example is not punished now, or the president-elect is not made president with the first opportunity, the public conscience will receive a searing, and party honor a blow not soon to be recovered from. A stupendous national fraud, Mr. Tilden says, is the issue of issues. He thinks that a man and a minority which take what is not his nor theirs, under a take what is not his nor theirs, under a covert intimation of force, unless it is conceded, is entitled to no more ben-efits of compromise than any similar band of squatters when overmatched. If the historic cheat of 1876 obtains prompt and full correction, the republic will not have to stand another shock of that kind for to stand another shock of that kind for generations. If uncorrected, it will be an encouragement to villainy, and a perpet-ual weakness to our system. Mr. Tilden thinks the United States the best organized of all countries and an insidious and success of all countries and an insidious and successful attack upon its organic system is an injury to mankind. Future history will take pride that the American congress, after a brief spell of submission, revived the greatness of the national crime. As to the act of compromise by which the intruder was seated, it was vitiated in the way it was carried out, if it had any constitutionality in its conception. The crime herea. ality in its conception. The crime be with a threat and ended with a trick.

This summary of opinions I understand to be reported by a prominent lawyer. I do not charge that they are in Mr.Tilden's words, or that he has taken any pains to

He said that no doubt Senator Matthews could explain to do so again. He said that no doubt Senator Matthews could explain satisfactorily every suspicious incident that had occurred in the whole business, and that, although he had committed an egregious blunder, he was entirely free from wrongful intent or any complicity with fraud, committed or proposed, or the intention to reward Anderson for committing fraud. He believed, and every member of the committee believed, that Matthews was deceived by Anderson and that when he aided Anderson and that the tha by Anderson, and that when he aided Anderson to obtain an office he thought he was rewarding a man who had faithfully

Georgia's Joey Bagstock, Aleck Stephens, gives fresh evidence of his toughness. A etter from him to the democratic committee of his congressional district says he will neither seek nor decline a renomination, except the convention should repudiate him as an unfit representative of demtude on the Potter business. In which case he should regard such declaration as the utterance of an "irresponsible faction of tricksters," and the question whether he or they are sound in the faith of the fathers shall be left for the true democracy to decide at the polls. American people, it is said, admire nerve and pluck. 'If the democrats of the eighth Georgia district are American people, Mr. Stephens will be returned "by a large majority."

A RE-CODIFICATION of the English criminal laws have been made by Sir James Stephen, whose digest of the old code is the text book of the English bench and bar. The new code is to be reported to parliament for adoption. Our criminal de is an offshoot of the English, and the improvements made by Stephen could be studied with advantage by the states of this union. The distinction between felonics and misdemeanors is swept away. Accessories and principals are put in one group-those who incite others to crime and those who undertake the same crimes on their own account being treated - alike. Minimum punishments are to be discontinued, maximum punishments are diminished in number, and cumulative punishments are forbidden. The punishments for small thieving and large thieving are so graduated that it will no longer be possible to send a petty offender to jail for stealing a loaf of bread for a longer term than a rascally insurance officer or a fraudulent banker whose robberies sweep away the savings of thousands. Murder is carefully defined, and the provocation that reduces murder to manslaughter. Infanticide, under circumstances of shame and distress, is no longer to be punished by hanging, though the penalties are severe. All crimes are unmistakably indicated with their penalties, and the forms of procedure wonderfully simplified. The law of venue is swept away, so that it will no longer be possible that a trial should prove abortive because a crime is proved to have taken place in a county different from that in which it was alleged to have been committed.

Is John J. Patterson is a specimen of the "Honest Johns" of South Carolina, we should like to see a South Carolina thief. The committee appointed by the legislature of that state sometime ago to investigate the election of the said honest John have made public the first and second sections of their report. In these, 17 members of the legislature admit under oath the reception of bribes from Patterson to vote for his election as senator of the United States. The following is the full list of the prices paid for the votes of the seventeen members: $50, $225, $50, $2, 200, $1,000. $75, 50, $250, $45, $25, $100, $175, $400 $300, $140, $250, $200-average, $425.60, nearly. The highest-priced members were C. S. Minort of Richland, who received $2,200, and H. J. Maxwell, who received $1,000. Seventeen other members testified that they were offered certain sums each to vote for Patterson, but refused the prof fered bribes. They gave the names of the persons who offered the money, and John J. Patterson is named as the man who offered the bribes in eight of the seventeen cases. The sums offered by Mr. Patterson were $1,000, $1,000, $300, $500, $300, $1,000, $300, $200-average $575. The largest sum offered was $5,000. which was tendered by John B. Dennis to W. B. Nash, who refused it. The report shows not only that Patterson's "election" was secured by barefaced bribery, but that gigantic frauds upon the public were perpetrated by means of supplies furnished to state officers, members of the legislature, clerks and others connected with the state government, who appropriated the same to their own personal use charging them to the state. Patterson is the fellow who said there was "five years of good stealing left in South Carolina He probably overestimated the length of the time, but he holds his seat in the senate of the United States all the

THE line of investigation that was thrown out toward the Wormley hotel conference has probably been reeled up. It will be remembered that it was a con ference of some southern democrats with some Hayes men whereat, according to the malevolence of machine republicans and southern democrats, the Hayes men agreed Packard and Chamberlain should thrown overboard by the administration, for which the southern members were to prevent the northern democrats in the house from nullifying the work of the electoral commission and to vote for its ratification. This was done and the political prospectors have been expecting to strike a big bonanza. Ben Hill ruins their claims. He tells the correspondent of the New York Times a piece of secret history, which, as he claims, redounds to the credit of the patriotism of confederate brigadiers. After the decision of the Florida case in favor of Hayes, Hill saw that the issue soon to be met was the legal inauguration of Hayes or another revolution. He consulted with some southern members of the house and to use his own words:

We who had just emerged from a ruinous and disastrous war and had experienced its devastating effects—we ex-rebels determined to prevent a second civil war and spare the to prevent a second civil war and spare the country from all the terrible horrors that would attend it. Acsordingly, 42 ex-confederates solemnly pledged themselves to each other upon their sacred honor to oppose all attempts to frustrate the counting of the votes or president and vice-president.

They held no caucus, but each signed an agreement to that effect and stood to it. This was several weeks before the Wormley hotel conference. "We held the balance of power," said Hill, "and didn't propose to permit another war if our votes could prevent it." Concerning the Potter investigation, Mr. Hill said he personally did not believe that President Hayes was in any manner connected with any frauds or irregularities. On the contrary, he thought he was an honest, pure and upright man. "If anybody attempts to inaugurate a revolution," said he, in conclusion, "the ex-rebels will put it down. We will not allow it."

Hasty Judgments. There was some talk of lynching Bales, the suspected murderer of Mrs. Wilson and her little girl at Eden, Hancock coun ty. A mob of three hundred or more men wanted to hear the investigation by the coroner, and threatened to tear down the building if they were not admitted and once set upon a work of riot and de struction, the chance of the murder of Bales by a self-constituted court would have been a serious one, especially after the threats said to have been made at the time of his arrest. But happily for the credit of the state, already much damaged by lawless inflic-tions of doubtful justice, better feelings came with the remonstrances of wiser men, and we presume there is no fear of a lynching affair now. The utter inefficiency of the law and legal agencies to punish crimes, especially against life. when the culprit has means to employ skilled counsel, has aggravated communities in more counties than Hancock and more states than Indiana, to such a degree as to make a violent capture of the offender from the officers of the law and his punishment by unsparing and unreasoning wrath almost a matter of course. We are getting used to hearing of lynch executions supplanting the functions of the courts, and what we get used to we become indifferent to. Another decade like that which began with the Renos in Jackson county, and is barely over row, will make as regard a lynching with little more repugnance than a Princeton collegian does a street row. Our courts are often useless, our judges not unlikely to be frivolous, ignorant, too ambitious to be honest, too eager to make popularity to be impartial, but the worst court that ever sat, and the poorest judge that ever electionered at a doggery counter are a better security for justice, taking one class with another, through any given time, than the best lynch tribunal that ever hung a thief. Inefficient law, any law, any kind of legal agencies, so long as they are held to legal forms and processes, are better than law-

There is another consideration in this connection that should not be overlooked. Lynchers have more than once struck the wrong man, and as their blows are fatal the wrong is irreparable short of the great day of absolute justice. It is true that courts have condemned and hung the wrong man, too, but, taking into account the number of culprits passing through the hands of the lawful and lawless tribunals, the proportion of deadly mistakes of less justice in the long run.

the latter is a hundred fold greater than the other. A court rarely acts in the whirl and tempest of passion roused by a cruel murder. The forms of law force an interval for the return of coolness and caution. Lynch courts rarely act except in the heat of excitement. In fact they can rarely exist at all, are rarely even thought of except in a of popular wrath, and horror. That difference is enough to settle the question as to the safest tribunal to trust for justice in the average of offences. In the excitement without which a lynch court is pretty nearly impossible-always very unlikely-acts are misinterpreted, language misconstrued, accounts magnified into revelations, immaterial discrepancies, the effect of alarm or natural confusion, tortured into proofs of guilt, and nothing the accused can do or leave undone but will confirm suspicion. Dickens in one of his accounts of the doings and sayings of the London detective police-probably the best and most trustworthy men of that sortof service in the world-tells us that these men were so familiar with criminals and crimes, and with suspicions of crime and evidences of it, say that nothing is so common as for perfectly innocent persons to be confused, contradictory, imbecile as if overborne by a sense of guilt, when first arrested. They are more likely to show these superficial indications of guilt, or rather indications to superficial obsertion, than the actually guilty, something, of course, depending on natural steadiness of temper, experience of the world, and education. This is a vital fact, derived from the best possible authority, and in it may be, possibly, found an explanation of

William Cullen Bryant.

New York, June 12.—William, Cullen Bryant lied at 5.35 this morning. With the death of William Cullen Bryant there is none left of that group of writers born in the last quarter of the last century which first offered to the world something that could be known as American literature. Between the birth of Irving in 1783 and that of Fitz Green Halleck in 1795, were Richard H. Dana, Fenimore Cooper, Percival and William Cullen Bryant who survived them all. He was born in Cummington, Hampshire county, Massachusetts, November 3, 1794. He did not "lisp in numbers," but he very early work making verses of which the world is witness that his father's criticism on one of his boyish productions holds good for later times: "There are just four lines of poetry in the piece and all the rest is tin-sel." His father was a physician and an uncommonly sensible man. To his judicious excellence, who, in his "Hymn to Death," feelingly alludes to him in the lines:

For he is in his grave who taught my youth The art of verse, and in the bud of life Offered me to the muses.

There are few instances of precocity more markable than that of Bryant, and not many where a writer received prompter recognition and more constant admiration. At ten years of age he wrote and declaimed a piece at school. In his fourteenth year he wrote and printed two considerable poems, "The embargo" and "The Spanish revolution," which passed to a second edition a year later. In his eighteenth , he wrote "Thanatopsis," which of the voluminous and meritorious work he has since done in a remarkably long and busy life, is better known than any other of his productions; and, it may be said, chiefly known, for the mass of his fellow-countrymen cognizant of the well-earned fame that covered his later years, are generally satisfied to accept "Thanatopsis" as his certificate for it. It was not applicable. es his certificate for it. It was not publish until 1817. Then it was hailed as the first song of a poet of rare promise, and is quoted to-day as his chief glory.

In 1810 he had entered Williams college, where, distinguished for his attainments in languages and literature he took an honorable dismissal two years later and began the study of law. He was admitted to the bar in 1815, and the same year water lieses. 1815, and the same year wrote lines "To a Waterfowl," which are also among the "To a wateriowl, which are also among the most widely known of his poetical productions. He removed to Great Barrington and took high rank in the law practice of the local and state courts. In 1821 the didatic poem, "The Ages," was written, and in the same year a collection of his pieces was published, which was favorably received; and established his reputation. In the same lished, which was favorably received; and established his reputation. In the same year he married Miss Fairchild, of Great Barrington. His domestic life was eminently happy. His wife was a woman of rare excellence. She lived until 1868, His affection for her is exquisitely set forth in the poem, "The Future Life," which he wrote and addressed to her in 1847.

In 1824 Mr. Bryant was engaged as an editor of the United States Literary Gazette, a semi-monthly publication at Roston. The semi-monthly publication at Boston. The following year ne went to New York as editor of the New York Review. The year after, 1826, he became con-nected with the New York Evening Post, a newspaper at that time of federal dendencies, under the control of William Coleman. A few years later Bryant gained Coleman. A few years later Bry the control and gave it a decidedly ic' tendency, taking ground in favor of free trade, and in opposition to class legislation. He retained control of the paper until his death, and it never changed its character in this regard nor deteriorated from the high tone he stamped upon it.

It is not necessary to notice his poetical work, which he heave we desired.

work, which he kept up during the years of his continuous newspaper editorship. It consisted mostly of short pieces. In 1832 a collection was published, which reached Washington Irving in England who caved an edition of the control which reached Washington Irving in England, who caused an edition to be reprinted there, to which he gave the stamp of his European reputation in a laudatory preface. John Wilson generously reviewed in "Blackwood's," and from that time Mr. Bryant's genius has been the delight of English speaking on the other side of the water.

In 1834 he travelled extensively throughout England. France, Italy and Germany

He visited Europe again in 1845 and in 1849, taking in the far east and enriching his taste with the study of men and manners and breedening his reserve of literature which men and manners and breadening his grasp of literature which was so remarkably displayed in his later years. In 1845 he purchased "an old time mansion" near the village of Roslyn, Long Island where he has since resided. bong island where he has since resided. He made other European tours in 1857 and 1858. While abroad he wrote letters of travel, which even in these days of voluminous foreign information are not antiquated. While at home he continued his editorial while at home he continued his editorfal work incessantly, and wrote short pieces from time to time, which were published in various editions. In 1864 when he had completed his seventeenth year the Century club of New York celebrated it by a festival which was remarkable for the widespread interest it excited and for the generous recognition it bestowed upon one who for more than a half century had been a cited and for the generous recognition it be-stowed upon one who for more than a half century had been a central figure in American literature, a clas-sic in English writing. In his later years he was engaged in translations of the Iliad, which appeared in 1870, and of the Odyssey which appeared in 1871. In both he was singularly happy. It was a work which the exact and what might be called "steady going" characteristic of his mind peculiarly going" characteristic of his mind peculiarly had him, and the result in mind peculiarly commended as the best English version of the great Greek epics extant. Since then he has written some short poems, notably two, a "Christmas in Spain," published three or four years ago, if memory is not at fault; a poem as calm and beautiful as Milton's "Nativity," to which it bears, in parts, a likeness almost equal to a paraphrase. The other "The Flood of Years," now not more than a couple of years old, in which more than a couple of years old, in which more of the stately grandeur of "Thanatopsis" appears than in any single piece since that one. It is a happy literary life that can mark its beginning with "Thanatopsis" and its end with "The Flood of Years."

Of Bryant's genus there is neither time or space to speak at length. But to ay the least and say it briefly e was never underrated.

His chief trait is written as being the poet of nature. He was this but when he paints her there is more of the truthfulness of the photograph about it than the passionate strokes of the artist who dashes in the lights and the salient features here and there which appeal so strongly to the sense that perfection of detail is forgotten. He interpreted nature more like a philosopher than a lover and has given to his productions more the cast of compelling the compulsions more the investigation. ing than compulsion; more the impression that he sets out to do his task than that he is hurried to it by passionate inspiration He looks on nature with a sad calmness instead of a glad delight, moral-izing when he might better muse. His classic exactness fitted him for his Greek transla ons, which if they are not the chi his fame at least support one side of the arch.

His life was singularly happy; full of conditions which enabled him to be at his best constantly, and the time of its ending falls in apt accord with his lines on "June," printed elsewhere. How he died is best told by lines he remode years agge on "The old meria" he penned years ago on "The old man's

And I am glad that he has lived thus long,
And glad that he has gone to his reward;
Nor deem that kindly nature did him wrong,
Gently to disengage the vital cord.
For when his hand grew palsied, and his eye
Dark with the mists of age, it was his time to die.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Ben. Butler recently said in a speech before the Potter committee: "I want to know the facts. I have no other object in view, having neither enemy to punish nor friend to reward in this investigation; neither guilty person to conceal nor innocent person to convict." Hereafter the figure of justice for this country should be a fat, squatty old man with a square head, very bald, and eves cocked in different directions to indicate the view taken of both sides of the case. The Terre Haute Express says: "We have heard of Mr. Parker for some time as a suspicious and uneasy greenbacker of the Pomeroy stripe, and we are glad to learn that he has shown his hand openly, and proclaimed his treason." Now that Mr. Parker has declined the democratic honor of being beaten for the legislature we presume the Express will explain that its utterances were nade "in the honest indignation of the mo ment," as Sunset Cox calls it, "and having learned, etc., we are glad to say, etc., etc.' The Chicago Journal has the printing of the delinquent list of the city, and cense quently announces Monday's edition of itself as "126 pages." General Butler is reported to be trying to secure the influence of the Catholic priests in Massachusetts. If their influence would inluce him to confess and reform it would ccomplish good. He is a bold bad man.

The printers of the United States are credited with being the most intelligent body of workingmen in this or any other country. In their annual convention they are supposed to be represented by the best of their order. When, therefore, a resolution is introduced disavowing any sympathy or fellowship with the principals of communism and socialism. as it was at the convention in Detroit last week it is to be supposed they promptly responded "aye!" What they did do was: one delegate said it was none of the union's business; another that they were not here to out themselves right before anybody; another said that he was acquainted with communists and socialists and found they were all right and another said the union had no right to denounce them for holding opinions which to them seemed right and just! 'And finally the convention, by a vote of 24 to 19, voted to take no action in the matter.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat maniac writes:

The question will be fairly put, Who is the best man to fill the presidential chair in a time when social disorder is threatened; and the answer will be that Gen. Grant is the man. Then there will be an end to the man. Then there will be an end to talk about communism in the north and about the payment of rebel debt in the south. These, and not a third term, or a fourth term, are the "specters" of the future in this country.

Stuff! Neither communism nor rebel claims are any more of "specters" in this country than "third-termism." The people are able to dispose of any or all effectually and conclusively. If we have come to the state where our liberties depend on one man these liberties are not worth having. No one in the country thinks this but the Globe-Democrat and Robeson, Babcock, Belknap and the crew who were enriched by Grant's connivance. Let us have peace.

"There is a loud call," says an exchange, "for Robeson to come to the front." But Robeson is a retiring man just now, and won't respond until his friend Grantis chosen to that much-coveted third term. Then he to that much-coveted third term. It is to so punish usurpation as to prevent it in the fu-ture. Not to dispute his title is to make a precedent of such fraud in the election of a resident; in which case our institutions are Mexicanized indeed. Yet the Indiana republican convention had the effrontery to de-clare that the denial of the title of Hayes will clare that the denial of the title of Hayes will "plunge the country into anarchy, and thus Mexicanize and destroy our institutions." There is anarchy already, when the de facto head of the government has no right to his office. To drop him out and put in the rightful president is to introduce the reign of law and order.—[New York Sun.

I gazed upon the glorious sky
And the green mountains round,
And though that when I cause to lie

A cell within the frozen mould,
A coffin borne through alect,
And ley clods above it rolled,
While flerce the tempests beat—
Away!—I will not think of these—
Blue be the sky and soft the breeze,
Earth green beneath the feet,
And be the damp mould gently pressed
Into my narrow place of rest.

There, through the long, long summer hours,
The golden light should lie,
And thick young herbs and groups of flowers
Stand in their beauty by.
The oriole should build and tell
His love-tale close beside my cell;
The idle butterfly
Should rest him there, and there be heard
The housewife bee and humming-bird.

And what if cheerful shouts at noon And what if cheerful shouts at noon.
Come from the village sent,
Or sorgs of maids, beneath the moon,
With fairy laughter blent?
And what if, in the evening light,
Betrothed lovers walk in sight

Of my low monument?
I would the lovely scene around
Might know no sadder sight or sound

I know, I know I should not see The season's glorious show,
Nor would its brightness shine for me,
Nor its wild music flow;
Eut if, around my place of sleep,
The friends I love should come to weep,
They might not haste to go.
Soft airs and song and light and bloom
Should keep them lingering by my tomb,

These to their softened hearts should bear These to their softened hearts should.
The thought of what has been,
And speak of one who can not share.
The gladness of the scene;
Whose part, in all the pomp that fills
The circuit of the summer hills,
I.e., that his grayes is green; The circuit of the summer hills, Is—that his grave is green; And deeply would their hearts rejoice To hear again his living voice.

THE INVESTIGATION. Much Correspondence and Little Informa

During Anderson's examination yester day but little information was elicited mes A. Boulds was examined with like result, Ex-Representative Darrall then took the stand and was examined at length. In the course of his testimony he said:

Anderson had an interview about the mid-dle of January in regard to the collector ship. He represented to me and Packard that he had some influence with Matthews, and he volunteered to go and see Matthews and did so; and I think Senator Matthews told me, in fact he authorized me to say to Mr. Packard that he had withdrawn all his opposition; to say to him that Mr. Pack-ard would be acceptable to him, and he in-formed me that the trouble was that the president did not want Packard. Before that Matthews had been bitterly opposed to Packard. I had been to see him some time before Anderson saw him. I do not think Anderson's influence brought about the change. It helped. It talked with Senater Matthews a number of times, and other gentlemen from our state did, and about that time you know there was a change of front down there. Sena-tor Matthews had stood very well down in our state, and had been commended for his part in what was called "the Worm ley conference," and one thing and another, setting up the Nicholls government and the newspapers got to abusing him, and he did not feel so friendly to the democratic element; that helped to bring him around, and then also an interview with myself and, I think, Anderson, a great deal; because Senator Matthews repre-sented to me that he had said to Anderson that he had finally become satisfied that Packard understood better the wants of the parties down there and was a proper man to be appointed. As to any other influence, Matthews never represented that Anderson had any.

His testimony was continued at great length, but demonstrated nothing except hat Darrall and Anderson were working for themselves regardless of the interest or right of anybody else. A large amount of correspondence was read, and Darrall's ex-amination was not concluded.

A Billion.

Some curious statements and calculations lately appeared in the London Times correspondence as to the popular notion of high numbers, such as millions, billions and trillions. Mr. Bessemer said that he did not think any clear conception of a billion could be formed. Other correspondents gave the following facts: A single thickness of sovereigns spread over the floor of a room 71 feet 6 inches square is almost exactly one million. If, instead of being neatly laid in rows, the sovereigns of being neatly laid in rows, the sovereigns are placed as closely as possible, a million will just cover the floor of a room 67 feet 6 inches square. Mr. M. Hawkins Johnson writes: "The difficulty of comprehending the idea of a billion is scarcely so great as Mr. Bessemer would have us suppose. A shot one-tenth of an inch in diameter is readily grasped. It would take exactly one million of such shots to make a ball ten inches in diameter, and a billion of such shots would make a globe 83 feet 4 inches in diameter, which, although it may be called large, is not beyond ordin-ary comprehension." Mr. Lockwood says:
"In addition to Mr. Bessemer's dissection of a million, it may be mentioned that fifteen persons may dine together a billion times without twice being in the same relative position."

When he was light from his own door. the smoke increase in density, in consequence of the good folks of the city preparing their suppers, he would call all the family into the house, saying: "It's time noo, bairns, to tak the beuke and gang to our beds, for yonder's Auld Reekie, Psee, putting on her nicht cap."

Two chronic rheumatics in Germany have lately been cured by the stings of bees. One of them, a farmer's wife, who had suffered for six months so as to be unable to sleep, and almost unable to use her right arm, kept three bees on the arm until their stock of poison had exhausted itself. The effect produced was astonishing, as the lady, even on the first night, was enabled to every second leave and the state of the sta was enabled to enjoy a good, long sleep, the first time for at least six months, the racking pain being entirely gone. The arm was, of course, swollen greatly in con-sequence of the stings, but the swelling disappeared gradually upon the application of some cooling letion. All pain was gone, the lame arm recovered its previous vigorousness, and not the least sign of rheumatism has since shown itself.

Consecration of a Bishov Rev. George F. Seymour, LL.D., dean of the General theological seminary of New York, was consecrated yesterday as Bishop of Springfield, Illinois. Over 150 clergymen, the faculty of the theological semi-nary, nine bishops, and a vast congregation assisted at the ceremonies, held in Trinity church. The bishops present were Clark-son of Nebraska, Quintard of Tennessee, Lay of Maryland, Burchess of Quincy, Ill. Odenheimer and Scarborough of New York, and the bishop of New Zealand,

The Druggist's Circular gives the following receipt for making a paste similar to that used on postage stamps and gummed labels: Dextrine, two onnces; acetic acid, four drachms; alcohol, four drachms; water, two and a half ounces. Mix the dextrine, acetic acid and water, stirring until thoroughly mixed; then add alcohol. For attaching labels to tin, first rub the surface with a mixture of muriatic acid surface with a mixture of muriatic acid and alcohol, then apply the label with a very thin coating of the paste, and it will adhere almost as well as on glass.

France has 20 "agronomical" stations, where farmers can have soils, fertilizers, plants, etc., analyzed for a very small fee. There are plats of ground attached to these laboratories, where purely scientific agricultural problems are solved by direct experiment. The farm schools are institutions separate and distinct, and are becoming mere and more devoted to the especial needs of the regions in which they re located. There are 147 agronomi stations in Europe.

Trouble Between Austria and Russia. A Vienna correspondent says that Russia has recently taken a very overbearing tone towards Austria. A rupture seemed imminent a week ago in consequence of Russia's court refusal to listen to Austria's representations relative to Bulgaria. It is stated that the Russians in Roumania have received orders to be in readiness for

For those who neglect to rectify irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels, which they foolish-ly imagine will "come right of themselves." Or by the development of some serious chronic malady traceable to what they were pleased to consider a traceable to what they were pleased to consider a trifling disorder of the above named associate organs. Such a culmination is easily avoided. A course of Hostetter's Stomhch Bitters invarably has the of Hosteller's Stomhoh Bitters invaribly has the effect of renewing the secretive action, of a torpid liver, restoring healthy digestion and assimilation, and rendering the habit of body perfectly regular. The activity of these all important functions being restored, and the entire system toned and regular by this incomparable corrective and invigorant, no danger to the general health is to be apprehended from course witch, if not gradiented in time, will assuredly undermine is.

The Damon drill association of Washington, D. C., will visit Indianapolis in August, on the occasion of the meeting of the supreme grand lodge of the world, Knights of Pythias.

Peter Schwab, the big brewer, of Hamilton, is building large ice houses at this point to atore his beer. He makes Indianapolis a distributing point, and now ships 400 kegs here daily. The council committee on gas and sewers will present an ordinance to council mext Monday night providing for the building of a sewer through Market street, from Tennessee to Missouri to drain the state house grounds. The Indianapolis correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer has a return of the same old trouble: municipal affairs are not being managed according to his liking, and in consequence things are going to the demnition bowwows.

The report of the manager of the west-ern union telegraph office at this point for May makes a good showing. The receipts are nearly 30 per cent. greater than those of the same month last year, while the expenditures were 3 per cent. less.

Officers O'Haver and Splann last night recovered B. C. Wright's horse and buggs, which was stolen from in front of the station house Monday night, in Indianola. The thief had driven to Broad Ripple and back and then abandoned the vehicle. The unquenchable Dreythaler is circu-

Members of the bar throughout the state are requested to submit their views in writing upon the proposed legislation with reference to a relief of the pressure of business in the supreme court, to Hon. A. C. Harris of Indianapolis, secretary of the committee.

W. S. King finds a legacy of $13,500 due from the general fund to other funds left by Daugherty, his democratic predecessor. The township levy has not yet been fixed but in order to supply this deficiency there will probably have to be an increase of tax over that of last year.

The directors of Crown Hill cemetery have decided to buy 30 acres of land adjoining the southeast corner of their grounds, at $650 an acre. The land is owned by Mrs. Burchard and Mrs. Dauly. An extension is to be made to Tennessee street, affording an exit for a street railway.

A well-dressed infant has been left on the door-step of General George F. Mo-Ginnis, with a note attached, containing the following words: "I understand you want a flice baby to raise. Take me. My name is this Irving." The note was addressed to Mrs. Osborn, a near neighbor, and the prize package was evidently intended for her.

Yesterday morning a benevolent lady resterday morning a benevotent hady visited the room of a young woman in the central part of the city, and found her dead, with nothing to cover the body, and no money to pay funeral expenses. Several business men in the immediate neighborhood were called upon and gave the visitor sufficient funds to provide a decent burial of the remains.

Arnold Simon, 28 years old, unmarried, employed at Lieber's brewery, who attempted suicide day before yesterday by shooting himself in the head with a revolver, has been removed to the city hospital and will probably die. Suit has been filed in the superior court by the school corporation of the town of Irvington against George W. Julian, Oliver M. Wilson, Ly Jia A. Putnam and Otis A. Burgess, administrator of the estate of John O. Hopkins, deceased, for the sum of $540, which was paid to Miss Putnam by the trustees of Irvington in 1876. The ground of the complaint is that Miss Putnam had no license to teach, and therefore the trustees are executively for her release. the trustees are responsible for her salary.

W. S. Bell's Lecture.

W. S. Bell, of Boston, delivered his lec-ture, "What has Free Thought to Offer in the Place of Christianity," before-the Ger-man Free Thinkers' association last night. His lecture was an attack on the Bible, Jehovah and Jesus Christ. The teachings of the first were immoral; the Jehovah of the Old Testament was an immoral character, and the doctrines of Jesus were largely immoral. He denounced the doctrine of forgiveness of sins on repentance. It also was highly immoral. He (Mr. Bell) held that no ethical code could be Bell) held that no ethical code could be founded on the character of Jehovah or the teachings of Christ, and that free thought, which insisted on men working for the well being of others, not for themselves, was preferable to the selfishness of Christianity.

A lovely landscape all dotted over with unsightly boulders, is not more unpleasant to the sight than is a human face disfigured with bumps and pimples, those prime evidences of impurity of the blood. Dr. Bull's Blood Mix-ture will remove all such disfigurements premptly.

At 2 p. m. Saturday, the bids for the state house excavations will be received. There will be more than fifty competitors for the job which will cost between $4,000 and $5,000.

Railroad men and others interested in southern colonization say that emigration has fallen off greatly during the past six weeks, and attribute the decline to the Potter activation.

A gentleman well informed on the subject of county expenses says that a levy of 30 cents will be sufficient to meet all expenses if affairs are economically administered. There will be a levy of 10 cents made to establish a sinking fund for the payment of the court house bonds, which has heretofore been medicated.

Col. W. R. Holloway, Charles M. Walker, Ignatius Brown, General G. F. McGinnis and George C. Harding, returded last night from Warsaw where they spent several days fishing. They returned very much disgusted with their luck, after having convinced even the Warsaw people that that the lakes up there were fished out.

John M. Morton, son of the late Senator Morton, who has just been taken off the island of St. Paul, in the Pacific ocean, after a nine months' stay, will come to this city as soon as he can leave the Pacific coast. He is expected about the 1st of August. Walter Morton is at home, and is engaged in finishing his history of the Eads jetties, where he has been engaged for nearly two yoars. The book will be published this summer.

The item in The News the other day with reference to the violation of the postal law by inclosing more than one paper in a wrapper has been misunderstood by some readers. As many papers as are desired may be put in a wrapper, but they must be fully prepaid at the rate of one cent for two ounces before they will be sent. The trouble arose with those packages which weighed more than two ounces and had but a one cent stamp on.

CENTRAL VEREIN.

Closing Session of the Convention-Resolutions Adopted and Officers Elected. The German Central Verein held its closing session yesterday afternoon. The motion to reduce the annual dues from three to two cents per member, which failed in the morning, was brought up again and passed.

An amendment to the constitution was adopted, making it obligatory upon vice-presidents to call state conventions upon demand of one-fourth of the societies in

Father Schweninger, Messrs Gies and Kreutzer were appointed delegates to at-tend the convention of Irish Catholic beneficial societies at Worcester, Mass., next August.

On motion of Mr. Oesterle, of Philadelphia, a committee was appointed to draft an expression on the labor question. The committee reported as follows:

The twenty-third general meeting of the Central Verein expresses itself in reference to the living question of the day, namely, the labor question.

labor question of the day, namely, the labor question.

A thorough solution of the great social question is only possible through Christianity, because Christianity alone leads the conscience of mankind through divine laws and teachings to draw a line between the good and bad, between what is to be permitted and not to be permitted, and what is right and duty. Upon these principles is founded all social observances.

Chrstianity has alone that force of culture which inculcates the Godly mission of neighborly love. The true neighborly love recognizes as its tenet respect for the dignity of man as the image of God. Christianity it was which declared the equality of all men before God. It was Christianty which created free citizenship throughout the different ated free citizenship throughout the different nations, and is to be credited with the intro-duction of true order and decorum.

Christianity looks upon the king as the father of his people, honors the deserts of nobility and impresses upon the employer that the workingman is not only worthy his hire, but he is also entitled to respect and hire, but he is also entitled to respect and love, and that the employer should not use his power in an unchristian manner or oppressively. Christianity protects the widow and the orphan and warns the powerful against tyranny. On the other hand it demands the citizen's respect for the ruler, knowing that all authority is of God. So christianity enrolls all people in one family, and in this shaping of humanity christianity has settled the social question for all time to come. Christianity condemns self-help by means of unlawful force. Christianity condemns every attack on property and life which is not a matter of necessity. It protects the foundation of rights which have not been cared for by legislative bodies. So christianity and the church build the walls for every state.

So christianity and the church build the walls for every state.

Therefore the twenty-third general assembly declares that Catholic laborers shall not assist in any agitation which has for its object the overthrow in any form or for any purpose of these laws and asks all members of Catholic societies as good citizens and obedient children of the church to refrain from such movements, The report was unanimously adopted. mously adopted.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

of holding the next convention. Resolutions of thanks to various parties and persons were adopted. The president urged upon the delegates the necessity of enforcing the resolutions adopted, and then with three cheers for the pope the Verein adjourned.

The delegates remaining in the city today were taken in carriages and shown about town.

MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES.

Demands for a Reduction in the Freight on Coal --- Result of the Recent Conces en Coal.—Result of the Recent Concession.

Adam Rentchler, a manufacturer of Hamilton, Ohio, was in Indianapolis last week looking for desirable property on which to locate his shops, intending to remove to this city. There is no city in this country that has better advantages than Indianapolis can offer to the manufacturer, and the only drawback to the advancement of its material prosperity is the price of coal. The question of fuel enters so largely into the economy of a manufacturing establishment, that its cost often and nearly always outweighs other advantages a site may possess, and the high price of transportation of this article has heretofore been the chiefest obstacle to the progress of Indianapolis. The roads leading to the great coal beds of Indiana have been under the control of persons not interested in this city, and the copsequence is it has suffered greatly in comparison with other points less favorably situated. The recent agitation on the subject has resulted in a reduction of $3 per car on the freight from the mines to this city. This concession is already making itself felt. Inquiries for location are already being made and as is seen in the case of Mr. Rentchler, manufacturers are coming to view the situation for themselves. One result of the reduction is that the Bee line road is taking 30 car loads of coal a day from the Clay county mines for use on its road, which was heretofore drawn from the Hocking valley beds through Columbus. The Belt road will enable manufacturers to have their coal laid down at the furnace doors without the expense of hauling or handling; and when Indianapolis receives the same treatment in the matter of freight that railroads give other cities, there can be no doubt of a revival and growth of its manufacturing industries.

Court Matters. In the United States court Thomas W. Cookingham, postmaster at Wawaka, Kosciusko county, pleaded guilty to violation of the postal laws, and was fined $5 and costs.

the postal laws, and was fined $5 and costs. He opened the letters of a gentlemen to a lady in his town, in whom he thought he had an interest, and was caught at it.

The jury in the case of the Howe machine company against Joshua W. Dollison, their agent at Bowling Green, and Elkins and WHliams, his bondsmen, on trial in the United States court, returned a verdict for plaintiff for $1,600, the amount of the penalty. Defendants set up that their signatures were obtained by fraud and false representations.

Anna S. Wooton received judgment in Judge Elliott's room against Daniel V. Miller for $2,332.85 and the possession of certain notes sued on.

George Leffert, indicted for assault and battery with intent to kill Lewis Barth, at Mosch's grove picnic a week or two ago, was arraigned in the criminal court this morning and pleaded not guilty.

Alex. Harris, charged with robbing F. J. Mattler's residence, was found guilty and sent up for two years.

James O'Day and Edward Francis, two of the boys charged with stealing brasses from the I., C. & L. railroad shops, pleaded guilty this morning. They say that James Whitney, arrested on the same charge, is innocent.
